1st Statement of the Defendant
Miss Irene Sara Spalletti

Case ref: M00ED350

IN THE COUNTY COURT AT EDMONTON

IN THE TRUSTS OF LAND AND APPOINTMENT OF TRUSTEES ACT 1996

BETWEEN:

Mr Alexander Michael Luke Wolf Walker

Claimant

– and –

Defendant

Miss Irene Sara Spalletti

Contributions – Renovations

Exhibited in response to para. 20 of the Claimant's 1st Statement

Irene frequently made unilateral decisions about purchases for the house to be made without consulting me and then expected me to contribute (at least) half. Since our separation, attempting to agree and pay for further renovation works has been almost impossible. My solicitors were required to write to Irene on 5 November 2024, that:

"Finally, I understand that you are in the process of unilaterally instructing builders/ contractors to undertake works at the property without my client's consent. For the avoidance of doubt my client does not agree to any works being undertaken to the property without his prior written consent and insofar as you incur any costs in relation to this, he shall not be liable for the costs incurred by you."

First witness statement of Alexander Michael Luke Wolf Walker

47.4. Irene has used the joint account to make purchases for herself without discussing it with me first. For example, in June 2024 Irene purchased some suitcases using joint funds. I queried this with her, and she said they were for both of us. I told Irene I did not need a suitcase and she repaid the money back into the joint account; and BECAUSE HE WAS SHOUTING AS HIS SUITCASE WAS IN THE LOFT UNDER A LOT POF BOXES

Alex Walker

Yes what time you reckon you'll be home at? I've been video calling with Brian, finished the bedroom about to hit the office 18:04

MOVING OUT COSTS

We never agreed on splitting the costs of your storage as its contents are your own personal items.

The only reason we discussed and agreed to split the costs of the moving vans its because we were moving furniture that we are now both equally using in the new house as well as saving us from speding more money on new furniture.

As it would be unreasonable for me to charge you for the fuel used to move my personal items with my car.

Patterns of abuse or other incidents 6.0

6.1 Other abusive behaviours I would like the court to consider

(1) The respondent would purposely not assist me when I was vulnerable. He would not bring me water or necessary medications, telling me it wasn't that hard to get up and make myself soup when I had temperature and added demands for me to do household tasks even while I was unwell. When I would have extremely strong abdomen pain, physical flare ups of rheumatoid arthritis or fibromyalgia, more often than not, the respondent would laugh at me, screaming at me from down the stairs to "shut the fuck up and stop making – groan and pain related – noises" and that I was only doing it to get his attention, that I was faking being in pain.

(2) On the 16th May, the respondent decided not to inform me that he was sending me to his mother's house while her guests were both positive for COVID. Just a few days later, we were set to travel to Europe to visit my parents—who, like me, were considered vulnerable and at risk.

(a) When I arrived at his mother's house, I was surprised that her guests wouldn't even greet me with a kiss. They were equally shocked that I hadn't been informed about the situation.

(b) The guests had met with the respondent a couple of days prior and had already tested positive, which they had communicated to him. When I confronted him about this, he denied having received that information and repeatedly claimed he didn't know (see Exhibit nº ISS-20).

(c) The respondent prioritised his mother's emotional needs over the health and safety of my parents, who had just recovered from life-threatening pneumonia. To him, ensuring his extremely social mother had company was more important than the potential risk to my parent's lives.

(3) On the 19th June, in Paxos, Greece, the respondent lost control towards his mother in the same way he would toward me, simply because she hadn't turned off the air conditioning. For the first time ever, she was taken aback and shouted at him that he needed professional help (see Exhibit nº ISS-21).

(4) On the 21st, while I was in the shower, I recorded yet another one of his outbursts of anger, which had started earlier in the car. He would constantly lose control if I dared to say anything during his endless monologue, despite his interruptions that often escalated to the point where I couldn't get a single word in (see Exhibit nº ISS-22).

(5) I had sent the respondent a message over Signal, which was afterwards followed by a face to face conversation, saying that: because I had no income or savings left, I could not afford to put any money towards any house work besides the essential electrical works that were currently taking place; leaving him enough time to put a stop to the upcoming building work, which, incidentally, only he found important to do (see Exhibit nº ISS-23).

3rd July 2024

(6) Back home, I was managing the house on my own. I spent over a week with barely any sleep, creating mood boards for the renovations and researching lights for the electrician. After discovering that the respondent had inaccurately measured the garden, claiming it was 7 metres shorter, I was left questioning whether the property measurements had been misrepresented during the exchange. My father and I dedicated two weeks to drawing up new floor plans with accurate measurements. In addition, I sorted through my boxes and managed to clear out ten of them. I also spent three days researching and testing various interior design software to effectively plan the essential renovations for the two bathrooms (see Exhibit nº ISS-24/A).

(a) When I finally chose one, I dedicated the entire day to learning how to use the software, starting early in the morning. I watched video tutorials and worked on technical 3D drawings. Meanwhile, the respondent lay on the couch, watching Netflix and smoking a lot of weed. Not once did he offer to help.

(b) Despite everything I was doing, the respondent would come back from the pub shouting that I was "doing fuck all", followed by obscenities like, "Do I have to do everything around here?" In response to this absurdity, I had asked him not to speak to me and to give me personal space, particularly in the bedroom. Of course, he ignored my request and, after work, positioned himself next to me on the bed, continuing his relentless accusations. All I could muster was, "I thought we agreed on you leaving me alone".

(c) The respondent then leaned over me and, with an ironic laugh, said, "Let's see what you've done today—three lines? Oh well done!" (see Exhibit nº ISS-24/B).

(d) By managing my time and observing all the hard work I was doing around the house, the respondent was fully aware of the hours I was putting in and the physically demanding tasks I was handling. Yet, he consistently dismissed every single thing I accomplished. While I was tirelessly working, he would once again be lounging on the couch, watching TV and getting high. It was unbelievable that he thought it was appropriate to disrespect me by claiming I was doing "fuck all"

10th July 2024

(7) The respondent woke me up demanding I'd put the money back in the joint account, I calmly refused by giving him a short and direct explanation and called him a thief taking my money out of the joint account and for refusing to pay me towards household purchases

(a) The respondent then grabbed a 2L heavy duty refillable water bottle that was full to the top and physically intimidated me with it, clenching the fist that had the bottle in and pretended to hit me with it repeating over and over: "put the money back in the joint account, put the money back in the joint account.

(b) He then began to laugh at me and tried slapping me on the face multiple times, then repeatedly pulled the duvet off me and attempted to pull off the mattress.

(c) While I was still not reacting, I had asked the respondent to stop, multiple times and to leave me alone. But he had no intention of stopping. He then got up while I was lying on the bed, and stood over me, opened the lid of the water bottle, I am not certain but I believe he was (it has been recorded and attached as evidence to confirm this) laughing while beginning counting down from five, saying that if I hadn't put the money back by the end of it he would have emptied the bottle of water over my head.

(d) At that point, the electrician that was standing outside on alert mode after hearing everything knocked at the door, called the respondent over saying: "it doesn't sound good at all from over here, stop!", and took him away from the bedroom making him go downstairs with him (see Exhibit nº ISS-25).

(8) It was just a constant monologue from the respondent; there was never any intention of having a genuine discussion. He only sought confirmation that he was right and I was wrong. He felt superior as he screamed at me, calling me lazy and worthless. The respondent's sole intention was to dominate and win, with all his behaviour aimed at proving himself right at any cost.

(9) However, simple tasks, like sending me a text with the five dates we had planned, took him from November all the way to February 7th to complete.

(10) The respondent's unrelenting anger made it impossible for me to speak. I found myself living in silence, and the only time I could communicate with him without being shouted at was when we were using cocaine. As a recovered addict, I was very mindful of my use, only doing so when I needed to have a conversation with him, when I reached my limit of enduring the abuse, or when I felt extremely hopeless and unable to get out of bed. Occasionally, I used it as a way to help me remain non-reactive to his outbursts.

(11) The constant threats directed towards my cats, the controlling decisions he made regarding our home, the persistent insults and lack of respect and appreciation he showed towards my parents, the shouting and yelling, throwing my belongings at me or damaging them against the wall, the ongoing belittling, name-calling, and undermining of me, the humiliating and degrading language he directed at me, the never-ending criticism, the manipulation, the monitoring of my time and making me account for it, the enforced rules and regulations he used to control me, the constant punishments he subjected me to, the threats and violence he used to inflict pain and fear, the restrictions and tension he created in our home, the anxiety and depression that ensued, the repercussions on my health and that of my friends and family, and the negative impact on my social life—I had enough (see Exhibit nº ISS-26).

(12) I wasn't sleeping or eating, I had constant panic attacks, and even when we were asleep the respondent would kick me in bed, or call me names, or "spoiled brat".

(13) After the discussion about the money he owed me, which he refused to pay back, his violence escalated like never before, and the threats to my cats continued. I genuinely feared for my life and the lives of my two cats. I needed to keep them safe, so my parents agreed to look after them until the respondent was no longer in my life.

(14) I had to move out of the house, and this wasn't the first time. Multiple times, I had to flee to friends' houses for consecutive days because the respondent's behaviour posed a risk to my safety.

(15) On the 14th July I drove home, to Luxembourg, with the cats, and by the 16th, I had broken up with the respondent.

(16) My cats are still with my parents for their safety, but they are due to come back home soon, following the respondent's bail conditions.

(17) I truly believed my life was at risk. I made a will and went to my friends to inform them face-to-face about what to do in the event the respondent would have seriously harmed me. I also told them where to find the evidence I had recorded of the incidents.

(18) I had to return to London to set up a safe space and a good studying environment before starting my university course on the 10th September. Additionally, I was being trained by an old colleague, now a friend, in web development, and it was important for me to reach a certain level while I still had some free time.

(19) I also thought it was important to come home to see if the respondent and I could coexist peacefully in the house without violence now that we weren't a couple. If that wasn't possible, I knew I needed to explore alternative solutions.

(20) Given all of the respondent's behaviour, my parents felt it would be safer for me not to return to the house alone. They decided to come back with me and stay for a few days to ensure my safety.

(21) When I informed the respondent, he launched into a new round of threats, saying things like, "You'll see what will happen if your parents try to come", "Your parents won't come until you've done this or that", and "If your mum comes, I'll sell the couch so she has nowhere to sit". He added, "I have more power to block your parents than you do to block me", and "If your parents come, I'll invite friends over, and I can't guarantee we won't keep them awake all night".

(22) I decided it wasn't safe for them either, and I promised my parents that I would stay with my friend Danilo if the respondent's behaviour didn't change.

(23) The respondent would shout at me and degrade by saying things like: "go fuck yourself, go on, take your toys out and fuck yourself with them ", or as previously mentioned: "go on, do us all a favour and go kill yourself", while shooing me away with his hands (see Exhibit nº ISS-27).

(24) The respondent was constantly angry and shouting at me despite the fact that we weren't in a relationship anymore. Whether I'd ask him if he's seen a box I was looking for, or because I said that "he didn't bother answering my text message" – which he didn't, or because I had asked him to leave me the last loo roll (see Exhibit nº ISS-28).

Patterns of financial abuse 6.2

Financial abusive behaviours I would like the court to consider

(1) The respondent has an annual salary of £109.560, to my unknown and having only just discovered, he has £146,988.69 in stock shares, various crypto accounts with large sums in it, an unknown amount to me of other savings spread over multiple bank accounts and, I believe, multiple investments with various friends and acquaintances. I am currently unemployed, though my limited company remains active. I am not receiving any benefits or Universal Credit and am relying on financial support from my family (see Exhibit nº ISS-29).

(2) At the time of moving in the new property, the respondent had asked me not to expect from him to pay me back any of the money he owed me as he was "broke". I was okay with that as I didn't need it right away. We knew the first big expense for the house would be the complete rewiring of the electrics. Having had put £9,479 upfront for electrical appliances, various pieces of furniture, and home insurance, and expecting back from the respondent another £3,297 for other non house-related costs as well as £1,200 for one year of Amazon purchases on top of the above sum, we had agreed I would pay my half to the electrician upon receiving my money back from the respondent, a total of £9,236.95 that I still haven't gotten back (see Exhibit nº ISS-30).

(3) The respondent had created an excel spreadsheet for the house costs, having ADHD and upon advice from a professional, I had designed my own as I was finding excel intimidating. I had printed a copy for the respondent on the 24th April but fearing his disapproval and constant complaints over everything, I had decided to wait for a day he would be in a "good" mood before sharing them (see Exhibit nº ISS-31).

(4) On the evening of the 30th April I had handed to the respondent his own copy of the printouts which included all the information he was asking for. The respondent even complimented me on them.

(5) This confirms the respondent was provided with all the information he had requested.

(6) The initial estimate given was of £9,500, but, in actuality so far, currently totals £16,358.23 (see Exhibit nº ISS-32).

(7) I was managing the house on my own. I spent over a week with barely any sleep, creating mood boards for the renovations and researching lights for the electrician. After discovering that the respondent had inaccurately measured the garden, claiming it was 7 metres shorter, I was left questioning whether the property measurements had been misrepresented during the exchange. My father and I dedicated two weeks to drawing up new floor plans with accurate measurements. In addition, I sorted through my boxes and managed to clear out ten of them. I also spent three days researching and testing various interior design software to effectively plan the essential renovations for the two bathrooms (see Exhibit nº ISS-24/A).

(8) While I was doing everything in the house, the respondent refused to take on the one simple task of copying the 20 numbers from the printouts onto his own spreadsheet

(9) Despite totally dismissing my own spreadsheets, sometime in Greece, the responded voiced out an ultimatum, disclosing that if I hadn't filled in his excel spreadsheet with my purchases by the 1st July, it would absolve him from paying me back for them (see Exhibit nº ISS-33).

(10) On the 26th June, I had sent the respondent a message over Signal that was afterwards followed by a face to face conversation, saying that because I had no savings left or income, aside from the help of my family, I couldn't afford and would not put any money towards any house work after/besides the essential electrical works that were currently taking place leaving him enough time to put a stop on the upcoming building works only he found important to do (see Exhibit nº ISS-23).

(11) Despite me telling the respondent, he ignored me and proceeded with the totally unnecessary removal of the second fireplace that would have resulted in the gain of 1.44 x 0.35m of additional space in a room long 7.61m and wide 5.31m.

(12) On the 27th June I received by email some blood test results that made me extremely worried. Those were given to me without any professional feedback until the 3rd July, date of the appointment with my GP. The values showed (or better, I then believed they showed) signs of bone cancer and related worrying factors. As my auntie was recently diagnosed with bone cancer I was obviously terrified of the possible outcome.

(13) The respondent spreadsheet was not my priority. The respondent had the information he wanted me to add to the spreadsheet, and could have typed it in himself in 5 minutes but refused to do so.

(14) My GP reassured me on the 3rd July that I wasn't in any new health related danger, and already by the same evening I was sitting down and focusing on the accounts (see Exhibit nº ISS-34).

(15) It took me two days as I had to go through one year of Amazon purchases and bills from my previous home. I had taken the time to make sure all the numbers were correct, and had put together with care, on design software, PDF statements, with all the relevant sum and product descriptions, leaving no cost not proven for avoiding any new discussions and avoiding paying me back (see Exhibit nº ISS-35).

(16) These were sent to the respondent on Saturday 6th at 01:00, only 48 hours after discussing my blood test results with my GP (see Exhibits nº ISS-36, nº ISS-37).

(17) On the 8th July, the respondent asked me to put money into our Joint account for bills; I transferred £500, which was the full amount in the account on that day, meaning there was no money in it that belonged to the respondent.

(18) By the 9th July, it was absolute hell in the house. The respondent had falsely claimed "You have spent £8,000 on things for the house, none of which you checked with me", "I'm not paying for [the electrician]. You can deal with paying him", "Anyway you will have to discuss with Brian how you are going to pay him then" (see Exhibit nº ISS-38).

(19) I could not believe how, despite having over £200,000 in savings, the respondent would refuse to reimburse me for his share of the household items that we both used; stealing £9,479 from me and resulting in the loss of all the savings I had left (see Exhibit nº ISS-39). The respondent has yet to reimburse me for these shared expenses.

(20) That same afternoon, the respondent went to the cash point and took out from the joint account that had a total balance of £500, the money I had put for the bills, £100 of my money to buy himself weed with (see Exhibit nº ISS-40). After I had noticed, I transferred the remaining balance back into my current account and by 23:00 purchased my Eurotunnel Shuttle back home to my parents.

(21) The next morning, the 10th of July, the respondent woke me up demanding I'd put the money back in the joint account, I calmly refused by giving him a short and direct explanation and called him a thief taking my money out of the joint account and for refusing to pay me towards household purchases, this is when the electrician had to intervene (see Exhibit nº ISS-25).

(22) The lies, the tactics used by the respondent to deny what we had previously agreed on and the extent of the threats and manipulations used by the respondent to avoid paying me back what caused me significant emotional distress and has undermined my financial security (see Exhibit nº ISS-41).

(23) The respondent then threatened me with false legal statements regarding the house, claiming he owned more than me because he covered the building work (that I never agreed on) and that he had the power to evict me and the power to force the sale of the house without my agreement (see Exhibit nº ISS-42).

(24) Then he started controlling me and lying to me that he had more power than me over the house, making threats he could have me out within seconds, faking laws or legal acts of some sort that he used as threats and manipulations, the respondent claimed he had the power to have my parents lose all their money they had put into the deposit of the house (see Exhibit nº ISS-43).

(25) On the 14th July, I drove to my parents in Luxembourg with my cats and stayed there until the 2nd August; my cats remained until the respondent's arrest and consequent bail conditions.

(26) On the 16th July I had broken up with the respondent. The breakup had zero emotional impact on the respondent, he said ok and went straight into talking about finances. He continuously and unstoppably argued with both my mother and I about the money he owed me. He unjustly retains funds that I contributed towards shared household expenses, despite repeated requests for reimbursement, denying agreeing on all the expenses, continuously claiming I had spent £8,000 without discussing any of it with him

(27) The respondent immediately asked me for money for the holiday in Greece (see Exhibit nº ISS-44)

(a) He had opened his statement, looked at the available balance on the day we began the trip, then subtracted the last day's remaining balance and divided it by 2.

(b) Wrongly included in the two weeks spendings were:

the respondent's personal unrelated expenses, his online expenses, his personal monthly direct debits, personal travel arrangement of some sort as well as transactions between friends, and to and from his Monzo Pots.

(c) The total spending, which includes all of the above, was £2,700 in 13 days, for 3 people, 2 of which stayed the whole length of time, and the other, his mother, stayed 8 days.

(d) He claimed I owed him £1,300 and more for transactions paid from another card.

(e) Despite bragging about his education, having a degree in engineering, and how much smarter than most people he is - the respondent's maths didn't add up at all.

(f) Remembering he had already told me he had calculated that I owed him just under £1,000, and demanded I almost immediately transfer it over to him, I realised the amount he was now asking was significantly higher: by over ⅓ if adding the transactions not listed on the Monzo statement.

(g) I asked the respondent to email over the bank statements in PDF format, including the date and description of each transaction.

(h) The bank statements proved that the respondent had added almost £400 to the total and that the respondent had tried to manipulate me into covering for his mother's food and drinks.

(i) The respondent tried to manipulate me into making me pay for two of them getting drunk on the days I wasn't even with them. I told him as much, hoping he would recalculate, and attempt to not look so obviously guilty of insulting my intelligence and stealing from me.

(j) The respondent, as always, doubled-down his initial argument without adapting his thought process to the new information he now had, guaranteeing his maths were correct, and that he had not included his mum's costs; bar tabs from the days I had spent in bed, depressed, and hiding away from the respondent were included in my costs.

(28) On top of the above sum, by the 16th July, the respondent owed me another £3,297 separately from the costs related to the new home. He again did some so-called maths and responded with: "based on your numbers and my calculations I therefore do not owe you: £3,297 but rather £189" (see Exhibit nº ISS-36).

(29) All this started the day of the break up and went on until his arrest.

(30) On the 17th July, the day after the breakup, the respondent deliberately coerced me into paying for his mother's holidays.

(31) This happened three times in eight days. For three whole days I was secluded in a bedroom on a Greek Island because I didn't want to cross paths with the respondent, his unstoppable anger, and his public shaming and name-calling.

(32) People witnessed the respondent's behaviour in cafés and terraces; at least five strangers approached me asking: "what the hell are you doing with that? "He's a total arsehole", "How can one have no shame in publicly treating a human being this way?" and "what kind of man treats a woman this way".

(33) By that point I wasn't so shocked anymore but nonetheless always unexpectedly surprised, at the endless ingenious justifications he would come-up with to get out of doing, paying or taking responsibility for something.

(34) The respondent turned every money transaction into war, arguing £4 worth of cat food or asking me £2 for a joint, £5 for eating two mouthfuls of his take out worth £4 etc...

(35) Following the break up the respondent began threatening me to take my bedroom and to put locks on the rooms so that I couldn't have access if I kept on asking him for the money he owed me (see Exhibit nº ISS-45).

(36) On the 15th August the respondent came up with another one of his controlling ideas. He agreed to pay me what he owed for the furniture and other household-related costs, but only under one condition: By paying half, he would become a co-owner of everything, which would give him the legal right to sell it. Obviously, that was ludicrous. One option we were considering to resolve the housing situation was to rent out the entire property. The furniture belonged to the house and needed to remain there; selling it was never going to be an option (see Exhibit nº ISS-46).

(37) I have also noticed the respondent was moving hundreds and thousands of pounds daily between his personal accounts via the joint account. I have asked the police to investigate this further (see Exhibit nº ISS-47).

6.3 The impact of these incidents on my health, safety and wellbeing:

(1) I was unable to engage in activities I once enjoyed and became increasingly socially isolated. My sleep was severely disrupted, leading to insomnia with periods of either barely sleeping or oversleeping, which greatly exacerbated my overall distress.

(2) As the respondent became physically violent and abusive towards me, I lived in constant fear of how severe his actions might become. I was frequently terrified that his violence would only end with my death.

(3) I lived in constant fear for my life and took measures to protect myself, such as hiding my car keys, home keys, laptop, and phone before he could find them. Additionally, I was forced to leave the house and stay with friends because I no longer felt safe at home.

(4) Under the respondent's constant control, I was frequently punished and had to adhere to his strict rules. This relentless fear of punishment created a pervasive anxiety. I was constantly worried he would act on his threats, and that he might harm my cats, my parents, or dispose of my furniture and personal belongings whenever I left the house, which made me afraid to leave home.

(5) The situation had serious repercussions on my parents' health and well-being, adding to my stress.

(6) The respondent's attempts to undermine my future were particularly devastating. He actively tried to prevent me from returning to my studies, dismissing it as an excuse to procrastinate, and obstructed my efforts to apply for minimum wage jobs in my new field of study.

(7) The respondent systematically sabotaged my career prospects and academic goals, leaving me feeling trapped and powerless. He never inquired about the university open day, showed no reaction, and completely ignored me when I told him I had been accepted into the course.

(8) The respondent exploited my anxieties and beliefs, abusing his position of trust. This manipulation included insulting and belittling me in front of others, engaging in gaslighting, and making me the target of ridicule. His actions included kicking me in my sleep, throwing objects at me, and threatening to do so, all of which contributed to my constant fear and anxiety.

(9) This situation led me to live curled up in a foetal position under the duvet whenever I heard the respondent in the house, overwhelmed by fear and anxiety.

Exhibit nº ISS-23/A • BUILDING WORKS, NOT AGREED UPON BY ME

signal conversation, dated [26/06/2024], referred to in the Section 6.1.5

These message show that I had told the respondent I wouldn't pay for anymore building works after the electrics "I will not put a single penny into any more house works until you start treating me with respect, little thing that seems impossible for you to do. I don't want to be shouted at for the rest of my life and I definitely won't be with someone that doesn't acknowledge or appreciate or even smaller, is aware of how much I'm doing. The house plans, mood boards, packing the top floor, throwing half my shit away, buying lamps, measuring, for two weeks non stop night and day all on my own without any help from you where all done while you were on the couch smoking joints. I have zero income and yet I'm paying 50/50 for everything with no help from you so I will do exactly the same and i will, by the 1st July ask you to pay 50/50 of the bills in Bravington. If you can't help me while I'm in the shit why should I help you when you weren't and were happy to spend money out at the pub".

Alex Walker

You · 0:59

this looks like a cool thing to do btw

i am really excited about where the house is gonna be at in a couple of months time i want us to have fun doing it and get excited about things together 10:47

Alex you know I came back from my run at 1.30 and I came to bed at 3.30 and in those two hours I planned this day minute by minute you would have come home to a whole new first floor totally cleaned and setup to be cosy together in the evening.

So out my hectic day the couple of hours I took for "myself" were actually for the house.

But as you seem to be totally incapable to see that I'm holding this fucking household up but even worse you believe I do fuck all aside from smoking joints during the day (which I never do) and you do everything you can prove us right and clean and organise the first floor that I was gonna do today.

It's double standards with you there's rules for you and your friends men and other ones for the females, mum and I.

For now you have lost me once again. I will not put a single penny into any more house works until you start treating me with respect, little thing that seems impossible for you to do.
I don't want to be shouted at for the rest of my life and I definitely won't be with someone that doesn't acknowledge or appreciate or even smaller, is aware of how much I'm doing.

The house plans, mood boards, packing the top floor, throwing half my shit away, buying lamps, measuring, for two weeks non stop night and day all on my own without any help from you where all done while YOU WERE ON THE COUCH SMOKING JOINTS

Discussions won't go anywhere and I'm done with them. Take a couple of days to think if you will ever be able to treat me with respect

Because nothing has changed 11:45

Irene I want a lovely time with you. 11:49

If you can we can talk 11:46

But I have asked you to sort money so many times.

and its so concerning for me 11:49

Alex I'm not talking about that

I don't want to live like this 11:46

so i dont understand why you think i will pay for you if i ask you to keep good records and let me know what is being spent and you just dont do it. i find it really upsetting.

I HAVE DONE EVERYTHING IN THIS HOUSE EVERYTHING you've done fuck all but nagging behind me endlessly about not cleaning not putting this or who what else away

FUCK YOU for even dare saying out loud: do I HAVE to do EVERYTHING IN THIS HOUSE??? YOU DO NOTHING NOTHIIIIIING!!!

ooooooooohhhh how dare you

Alex, I don't want to hear your excuses anymore I really am not interested anymore. 3:53

And ALSO... everything is mine around here, you use all if this stuff every day and without my stuff you would have to pay quite a few k to live comfortably.
SO JUST

SHUT THE FUCK UP about the cost of YOUR lighter
You're absurd absurd

Or complaining about MY STUFF because it's what makes this HOUSE cos clearly ITS NOT US that do that

So petty about money it's disgusting

Honestly Alex I just don't like who you've become.
I don't hate you but I just don't like you... At all... As a person. There's nothing nice or kind about you anymore. It's ALL GONE. This is a stranger I'm living with. 4:04

The parmesan comment came after you ate EVERYTHING I BOUGHT FOR 3 PEOPLE without considering anyone else. AND EVEN if you thought I only bought it for you with my parents coming or even EVEN JIST ME nowhere in your brain you thought of sharing it????

You're so selfish YOURE SO SELFISB 4:23

You never give me a break do you? You spend your existence putting me down, telling me everything I do, say or simply AM is wrong.

Not even today not even today. Untouched by my results. Not even that gets you to be kind for 6 hours

If so much of what I say or what I do makes you so mad just accept that you hate me and give me a fucking break please 1:06

But tthere's nothing you like about me so please do me a favour and stop spending your days reminding me of that thanks. Just think of it as a lost battle yeah and just leave me alone please 1:07

27 Mar 2024

I did. Until your actions today.

You can't talk to me like you want and expect me to bend over.

You need to learn a lesson.

If you are like this I will be.

You just say and do whatever to get sex then straight back to the constant attacks. I'm through with you.

Why don't you tell them you spend your time snorting pills and drinking and then I have to clean up after you?

Shall we see how that goes?

Yesterday you did exactly what you did at Julie's wedding. That's a broken promise. Don't expect me to be anything at all.

when you learn your words and actions have conserquences, we can talk again. not until then.

I'll probably be back around 7.30

Maybe later
14:36

As I said you can put the stuff that's in the bedframe drawers into bags it will take you 3 mnis then you can lift the bed with him

I won't be able to help you with heavy stuff

I need to prioritise my body rather than you 9:47

i'm going to do more training with him later today

i need to get on though, i'll speak to you later

> You
> As I said you can put the stuff that's in the bedframe drawers into bags it will take you 3 mnis then you can lift the bed with him

Irene, please just leave me to get on with it im working this morning and not doing that and then i will be working with them to get the rooms sorted and then i have meetings

> You
> I need to prioritise my body rather than you

thats fine, but just leave me to get on with the day please

> You
> As I said you can put the stuff that's in the bedframe drawers into bags it will take you 3 mnis then you can lift the bed with him

the room is a complete mess and i will do it later once you have sorted your stuff in there

there's food and cigarettes everywhere

so that will just have to wait now 9:51

Sure but don't expect to clean after you or do anything for you. You still as us as two individuals and completely missing what being a couple is about 9:50 no you do.

being a couple is about working together. not leaving the room a complete mess and asking me to sort it for you when you knew Paul was coming. 9:53

Sorry what have I been doing for the past week and a half 9:51 i'm not asking you to lift heavy stuff, im asking you to sort out your stuff to make it easier for us 9:54

You know what I'll just lie down in bed and watch TV shows going forward 9:51

> You
> Sorry what have I been doing for the past week and a half

doing the electrical drawings. i know. important but that doesnt give you the excuse to leave the bedroom like a tramp lives in there 9:54

You can do your own measurements and you can stop using my stuff if you still of mine and yours 9:52 what has that got to do with the state of the bedroom?

you think because you measured you can leave it like a shit hole and i'll clean up behind you?

what planet are you on?

ALL ive asked is you to sort your own clothes and shit out.

its not exactly a big ask.

so please leave me alone i have to work and i wil sort things with Paul/

but i'm not going to wade through your shit so please clean up after you and then i can move the bed 9:56

Yes I was sick

Fuck it 16:42

all im trying to do is do my job and i seem to do less of that and more other things 16:45

Just fuck it you're so self centered

Bye 16:43

i would love if my job got some air time 16:46

Alex Walker

Wed, 26 Jun

Because nothing has changed 11:45

Irene I want a lovely time with you. 11:49

If you can we can talk 11:46

But i have asked you to sort money so many times.

and its so concerning for me 11:49

Alex I'm not talking about that

> You
> I don't want to live like this

me too

i want to work together

i want to have a nice time 11:49

I don't see you shushing Nick or Robbie like you do to me and mum

You don't respect women 11:46

but honestly, if you think that its only me who is making this difficult then we are not going to progress.

We both make mistakes and we both are accountable.

if you really believe i do nothing around the house and you do everything then we are sooo far apart in our thoughts.

greece was a reset for me.

but until you accept that we are both accountable, how can things get better?

i need us to work together. I need that and we are not.

> You
> If you can we can talk

i want to talk

but i can't talk to you because if i say anything you don't like you say "well you did this or you did that"

which is not constructive.

> You
> Discussions won't go anywhere and I'm done with them. Take a couple of days to think if you will ever be able to treat me with respect like this comment.

This goes two ways.

i would like this same from you. Its both of us here Irene. Not just you.

So if you would like respect I would like that too.

and if you think you are treating me with respect, then sorry i dont think thats fair.

i even said to you the other day

"you never have asked why we aren't having sex"

and still you have not. 11:53

You think Robbie treats Ziba like that? No

I don't throw things at you

I don't try to break your laptop your phone one day out of two 11:50

Do you think Ziba keeps robbie awake at night when he has go get up at 7?

no. 11:53

I don't have have anger explosions at you

Omg

You know why I came to bed? 11:50

You
Omg

you see, i try to ask you if you think you are accountable for anything and this is your response.

we HAVE to work together.

respect is NOT one direction.

and until you sort the money out and the spreadsheet i believe you have no respect for my concerns.

respect is not just the words we use. 11:54

Because you always say to me you'd rather I come to bed earlier and watch something on the laptop low volume than staying on the couch or in a different room till the morning

So chose where you stand 11:51

you could have been working, you choose not to get "some work" but then you say "i have no money and i shouldn't pay half"/

i told you at Bravington, when you have a job i will pay more. 11:55

You can't change your rules depending on the moon 11:51

You
Because you always say to me you'd rather I come to bed earlier and watch something on the laptop low volume than staying on the couch or in a different room till the morning right but at 4am you wake me up and then won't put headphones on. when we have 3 hours to sleep. You think that is respectful?

Alex Walker
i told you at Bravington, when you have a job i will pay more.

its very simple.

sort the money situation and life will get easier. 11:55

Frankly you telling me and mum that I did nothing for the house when I overworked myself for two weeks while you were smoking joints on the couch doesn't go down with me 11:52

but stop thinking that i have a duty to pay more than you.

Let me do it because i want to, not because its a duty.

You
Frankly you telling me and mum that I did nothing for the house when I overworked myself for two weeks while you were smoking joints on the couch doesn't go down with me

you do what you want to do irene. you wanted to do the drawings/ Thats all you concentrated on. Who sorted everythign for Brian coming/ And then you said I did nothing.

its not fair that you think you are not accountable for anything.

honestly, LIFE will get better if you sort the money out.

money drives people apart and that is exaclty hwat is happening here.

so please. understand this.

i do not udnerstand why you dont do it. The only reason is you dont care.

thats all i can think of.

its 2 hours of work

nothing more.

and i ask and ask

but then when i dont re pot a plant you lose it because you asked 2 months ago.

but when i ask. you dont'

so how is that fair, please explain to me

but when i ask. you dont'

so how is that fair, please explain to me.

and i will start paying more when you have a job - as i promised.

but frankly its ridiculous that you still tell me i owe money from bravington and dont tell me how much. i have made it so clear how much money is worrying me and you do nothing to hel pthat yet you say it is just me who shows no respect.

there are two of us in a relationship.

its not just you who should be happy.

we can agree thoguh,

we are not happy at the moment.
We can carry on being not happy.
Or we can try to be happy.
But for that, we BOTH have to work to help each other.

it will not happen otherwise and you will see, respect will change.

but dont think that if i do things differnetly and you don't things will be better, they just wont be, thats how a relationship works.
because rigth now, we are not getting on well at all. we both know that and thats not a fun life to have for anyone.

and i want a fun life. 12:00

if you would like a fun time doing the house and a fun time together then its not just you who needs to be happy and if you understand that then please work with me to that.
The joints smoking is because it numbs my feelings. Its because i am not happy.. You will see if you have faith and help to make this fun.

---- 12:04

but ultimately if you think you are not accountable then we will always keep coming back to this problem where everything that is wrong is my doing and never yours and that just is not sustainable. If you want this to work you also i hope

no not only

but i am waiting for you to demonstrate that you realise that i am worried about the thousands of pounds we are spending

2 hours of your life it would take.

but you can't be fucked. 15:43

I have nothing more to demonstrate to you 15:43

> You
> I have nothing more to demonstrate to you

dont then leave.

go home. 15:43

It's your time it will never happen 15:43

i dont care. 15:43

I'm done 15:43

go then.

and yuo want to talk about double standards?

if i dont do something you tell me very clearly how many times you asked.

but when its you... 15:44

you just want to tell me what i did wrong all the time and not find solutions?

as you say, if you shout, i drove you to shouting.

if i shout..... it was just all me right?

so i have to apologise in both cases.

i CANNOT make this a better situation on my own. WE ARE TWO. Until we accept that we are in this together there is no solution.

are you leaving?

or are you wanting to fix this.

Don't worry nothing will happen today. Needs. fresh start. Today is not the day. 15:57

All you do is copy paste what I say. I started using coward and look all of a sudden Alex's imagination think to use the same word for me only 3 days later

You're laughable 16:01

irene.

i just want to work with you. 16:01

You should be ashamed of yourself for how you treat women 16:01

im trying to point out we are both doing things wrong

> You
> You should be ashamed of yourself for how you treat women

i treat everyone the same. 16:01

And even more your mother 16:01

its just you happen to be a woman who woke me up at 3am 16:01

I've never met anyone who dares disrespecting their parent like that

The problem is you're too far from acknowledging

And from the awareness phase it could take a few years to work on things

But you're not even at the first phase 16:02

> You
> The problem is you're too far from acknowledging

you say im the one copy pasting and yet ive told you you have no accountabiliuty and you now say it back to me 😂

unreal. 16:02

Its gonna take you too long if ever for you to get there 16:02

> Alex Walker
> as you say, if you shout, i drove you to shouting.

you ignore when i make points

because you wont face the fact you also have to fix things 16:02

You have no experience in relationships yet you're persuaded to be right 16:03

the copy pasting is because we are both doing these things Irene.

not just me. 16:03

Alex you're a narcissist 16:03

you are hearing it because its true for both of us

> You
> You have no experience in relationships yet you're persuaded to be right and you fucked all your relationships. 16:03

You should go get a diagnostic from a professional 16:03

so perhaps it is you.

> You
> Alex you're a narcissist

ahh good more constructive insults. 16:03

> Alex Walker
> its just you happen to be a woman who woke me up at 3am

Alex Walker
its just you happen to be a woman who woke me up at 3am

Or that didn't put a tea towel away

Alex are you seriosu 16:03

i am the only one who has said sorry here.

so how am I not acknowleding>? 16:03

Alex Walker
its just you happen to be a woman who woke me up at 3am

Or to someone that left the Aircon on

Alex 16:04

show me, when did you last say sorry? 16:04

Look at yourself 16:04

leave my mum out of this, my relationship with her is not our relatioinship.

i will talk to my mum about our things and you about ours.

when did you last say sorry irene>?

WHEN.

when did you ever say "i am sorry i did that Alex" 16:04

Alex Walker
you ignore when i make points

Because all you're doing is deflating from your unacceptable behaviour 16:04

WHEN.

NEVER> 16:04

Sat, 8 Jun

What time you back? 10:31

Fyi that was for an MRI on suspicion of Parkinson's. I just got home I cancelled all my other appointments

What's £130 for?

Its about £900 for the cats 11:04

You
Fyi that was for an MRI on suspicion of Parkinson's. I just got home I cancelled all my other appointments

Ok that's the kind of thing with communicating because I can't just know.

Anyway let's reset because we are going on holiday

You
What's £130 for?

Well if you read your message that's half what you said. Again. I can't read your mind me 11:30

No it's now two mornings you're insulting me accusing me of shouting and having tantrums when you're the one doing that. You expect me to drop everything on your demand but when I ask for your help I have to wait for months. You treat me like shit.

Alex Walker
Well if you read your message that's half what you said. Again. I can't read your mind me

Never said that

> You
> No it's now two mornings you're insulting me accusing me of shouting and having tantrums when you're the one doing that. You expect me to drop everything on your demand but when I ask for your help I have to wait for mont...

Well maybe ask me what I'm upset about. Something you've never once done.

Anyway, reset. We are going on holiday.

> You
> Btw I will be sleeping at some point don't you dare not allowing me to do so. It took me 3hrs last night to fill in the cats forms

As long as you have done everything you need to do for the house and electrician I don't care

I do care that you do your bit

> You
> Oh no I paid £260 deposit

What are you talking about.

You said 260 so I sent 130. 11:34

You should have asked me last night for the tv 11:31

I'm busy see you later 11:34

I would have planned my timings around that

Clearly my health means fuck all to you 11:31

> You
> You should have asked me last night for the tv

You are saying you didn't think we had anything to do?

And we haven't discussed the TV? 11:34

> Alex Walker
> You said 260 so I sent 130.

No I said I already paid £260 deposit 11:32

And we didn't discuss doing things this morning? 11:35

Plus whatever it's left to pay 11:32

Anyway. I'm busy. Please don't text me.
Let's reset 11:35

> Alex Walker
> And we didn't discuss doing things this morning?

Never

Cos you had your plans I had mine 11:32

Ok so you thought there was nothing to do today. Right. 11:35

Definitely no time to do this at 8.45am before hospital 11:32

Why don't you go sleep now? 11:35

Fucking hell

Cos I need to drive the cats 2 hrs 11:32

Enough time for a cigarette and lying in bed though.

I need 1 minute.

You had 30 lying in bed.

Anyway.
Reset!
Don't text me on any of this again. 11:36

Don't text me

I don't care anymore.

So stop please and try and be in a better mood for holiday. 11:36

Alex Walker
Well maybe ask me what I'm upset about. Something you've never once done.

I won't when you keep on calling me spoiled brat, bitch or when you're accusing me of shouting or having tantrums when you're the one doing that

.no no no

Doesn't work like that

He wants empathy and treats people like shit

Not even my ex that beat me up treated me the way you do 11:35

No more arguing please

You
I won't when you keep on calling me spoiled brat, bitch or when you're accusing me of shouting or having tantrums when you're the one doing that

Yeah I won't any more. I just want an enjoyable holiday and to reset as you keep saying.
I don't want to argue and I'm going to stop caring which should minimise or opportunity to argue.
I'll do my jobs and you can do yours

Anyway.
I'm trying to enjoy this course so please leave me alone and I'll see you at home. 11:42

I called you a bitch because you ignore me when I ask you things and I've asked you to stop that because it's fucking rude.

If you don't want to be considered one, don't act like one 11:45

Where's the car?

Alex Walker
Yeah I won't any more. I just want an enjoyable holiday and to reset as you keep saying.
I don't want to argue and I'm going to stop caring which should minimise or opportunity to argu...

Which I have been and am doing

Alex my fucking plant

Its over 2 months now

2 months

Please can you just do it

Alex Walker
I called you a bitch because you ignore me when I ask you things and I've asked you to stop that because it's fucking rude. ...

So you shout at me insulting me and I'm the rude one for avoiding talking back at you? Are you serious? 11:49

No the total lack of acknowledgement is rude.
That is why I called you that. Stop doing it and it won't happen it's very simple.

I asked where the bin bags were because I'm trying to sort out the house while you worry about yourself.
You didn't answer. If I don't understand why that's rude...

You
Where's the car?

Outside in other side of road 11:59

Dude I do stuff around the house daily without asking for your help

Alex Walker
I asked where the bin bags were because I'm trying to sort out the house while you worry about yourself.
You didn't answer. If I don't understand why that's rude...

I was doing th paperwork for the cats and running late to a brain MRI

If you call that only thinking about myself shows a lot about you 12:49

Dude I do stuff around the house daily without asking for your help

> Alex Walker
> I asked where the bin bags were because I'm trying to sort out the house while you worry about yourself. You didn't answer. If I don't understand why that's rude...

I was doing th paperwork for the cats and running late to a brain MRI

If you call that only thinking about myself shows a lot about you 12:49

Listen I don't see us ever converging here.
Can we please just have a nice holiday

Please just reset as you always say

There's no point in trying to get to a conclusion so let's just reset 13:16

Going to sleep now please don't wake me up with your screaming 13:35

Did you see the message about reset?
That's my plan. Just depends if it's yours. 13:44

> Alex Walker
> Please can you call them and see if we can drop the car tonight or whether they can collect the car from premier Inn?

Did you do this? 13:49

When???? When????

Forget any sort of reset if you don't apologize which is impossible for you to do..and if and when you do do try to not follow up your sorry with a but you

> You
> When???? When????

You're really clueless when it comes to the amount of work others put into things shocking

Sorry but you're out having fun I've sent you the details you can call yourself..I've been on errands all week while you were smoking joints and watching TV never asked a thing of you

Be a man and at least realise it to yourself 13:50

Fucking megalomaniac 13:54

I called you that because you acted like one. It's quite straight forward, stop acting like one and I'm stop telling you you're acting like that

If you don't want to reset then don't come to Greece

> You
> When???? When????

I was just asking. What's wrong with you.

> You
> Sorry but you're out having fun I've sent you the details you can call yourself..I've been on errands all week while you were smoking joints and watching TV never asked a thing of you

Oh ok well good to know what you believe but I'm the clueless one

I'm on my way home. I'll carry on sorting everything so it doesn't get fucked by the building works while you sleep

Don't wake up in a temper please. You are no angel.

I've reset. Anything that happens when I'm home is on you 14:08

I think you 2 should go for now I'll decide what to do afterwards 18:29

536 21:38

We're in the courtyard do you want to bring everything over? 22:46

Can do sure 22:49

Are you coming back down or...?

Are you getting high in the room? 23:48
