APPOINTMENT OF TRUSTEES ACT 1996

Claimant

Defendant

Miss Irene Sara Spalletti

Family Law Act proceedings

*Exhibited in response to para. 28
of the Claimant's 1st Statement*

As detailed within my statement within the Family Law Act proceedings, the reason Irene called the police prompting my arrest was because she alleged I had damaged property during an argument on 1 September 2024 namely a lamp. Irene knows that I did not break the lamp on that date and that it was accidentally broken on 26 July 2024 (as was documented by me at the time with an apology and an offer to purchase a replacement).

Most recent incident

3.0

3.1 The most recent incident happened on: 1st September 2024

3.2 This incident of abusive behaviour has ended

3.3 The incident ended with the respondent's arrest

3.4 Details about the most recent incident

- (1) The respondent returned to the house at 22:33 and went straight upstairs to his room; two minutes later he came back down into the living room, asking me where the duvet was. He cut me off as I tried to answer that it was probably on the top floor; not letting me finish whilst demanding that I "just answer the question".
- (2) Then the respondent told me he had submitted a false report to HMRC accusing me of committing benefit fraud, saying: "you are now a criminal you fucking bitch". Unsatisfied with my lack of reaction, he tried again to scare me by saying: "Does your mum know you have bipolar? Does she know about the medications you're on? Do we need to tell her?", unaware that my mum knows about all of my conditions.
- (3) The respondent then said the builder had bought the wrong flooring but that he would "let him off this time" and that he "wouldn't be punishing him for that" - following it up with: "and your stupid fucking bowl, you fucking lying cow I never taken out of this house", before going upstairs.
- (4) The respondent then came back downstairs and aggressively pulled the blanket off me, telling me to have some respect and at least throw away the TV box, which I had kept in case it had a fault and we needed to return it. He grabbed the TV and the remote and took them upstairs to his room, before coming back downstairs and asking me if I had broken the window, which I hadn't, and why the cord that held it up was broken.
- (5) Three weeks prior, the neighbour at 94 had asked the respondent to sort out the wisteria plant that had overgrown the front garden and had, by then, reached his roof; causing damage to his drain. The wisteria was also growing inside our own home between the windows. The respondent committed to hiring a professional but instead vanished for weeks. The day before the respondent's return, my lovely neighbour at 90 offered to help - it took us over three and a half hours to complete the work.
- (6) The respondent was aware we had put time and effort into trimming the plant as he noted: "The plant that was going through the window is not there anymore, which means you fiddled with that". I responded: "No, we cut the plant from the outside, you can say thank you for that". The respondent: "No, I can still see the plant coming through the window a bit, so you obviously pulled it from the inside and now the window cord is hanging out. That's about 300 quid worth of damage. Well done, this looks good, you can say thanks for that".
- (7) He then walked up the stairs shouting and calling me a "cow" and a "cunt" (see Exhibit n° ISS-02/A).

- (8) The respondent followed-up by sending me an email from his bedroom that said: "cut from the outside but it's still inside, wow impressive" and attached a photo of the one stem that was stuck between the window (see Exhibit n° ISS-02/B).
- (9) The respondent then started to make worryingly loud noises, banging and hitting what I assumed to be my personal possessions. My mum, who was staying with us at the time, said that her bed was trembling from the impacts. I stayed downstairs attempting to practise meditation but, after a few minutes of uninterrupted banging, I felt really scared and began having a panic attack, as these outbursts usually result in continued insults, threats, and the destruction of my possessions by throwing them against the walls or at me. My mother was in the house, and I was worried for her safety. I woke my mum up and told her that I would call the police.
- (10) Around 23:00 I went outside on the street, walked away from the house and called the police. They attended the property around 23:30 and told me to check if the respondent had broken anything; we found the lamp that my auntie had bought me: totally smashed. It was in a box on the top floor; he had kicked it hard enough to destroy it while banging and hitting all my stuff in the search to find himself another duvet (see Exhibit n° ISS-02/C).
- (11) The police arrested the respondent half an hour later around 00:00 for damaging personal property. In the morning, the detective who had assessed the case called me to say that they believed my safety was at risk and that they didn't want him to come back to the property. They then said that they wanted to prosecute him under the charges of Controlling and Coercive Behaviour, and whether that was something that I would agree to proceed with. I said yes. They asked to provide further evidence related to the charges and I sent some voice recordings including the one of the night of the arrest and I believe some emails we exchanged where he was making more threats.
- (12) Later in the day, the respondent was released on bail on the condition that he wouldn't contact me or my mother and not come back to the property.
- (13) The condition is currently set until the 27th November 2024.
- (14) I had been warning the respondent since December 2023, more seriously since March 2024, that if this behaviour wouldn't stop I would have had no other choice but to report him to the police. He laughed at me saying that and said it would be "hilarious to watch" and that I would have embarrassed myself in front of the police.

3.5 The impact of this incident on my health, safety and wellbeing:

- (1) The respondent's behaviour and actions towards me have left me feeling frightened and, on multiple occasions when my family have wanted to come to visit and support me, he has explicitly threatened to ruin their lives.
- (2) I am frightened for the lives and safety of my cats after the respondent's threats towards them, as well as having me fearing for my own.
- (3) I am unable to sleep in my bedroom; instead I sleep on the sofa, which is downstairs and not far from the front door, in order to ensure that I am on alert if he, one of his family members, or friends attempt to enter the property.
- (4) I am terrified and paranoid in my own home; I am constantly checking the windows and the doorbell camera to make sure the respondent isn't approaching the property.
- (5) The respondent's behaviour is still having repercussions on my health and on that of my friends and my family; we are unable to sleep from worry, and are in a constant state of anxiety.
- (6) As a result of his behaviour, I am still experiencing physical reactions to stress such as eczema and hair loss.
- (7) I am left incredibly scared of what the respondent may try to do next, and am still concerned about what he may attempt to do in the future.
- (8) I am terrified of the potential retaliation he might subject me to for reporting him to the police, and I constantly fear that he has made additional serious and false counter-allegations against me.
- (9) Due to the respondent's financially-controlling behaviour and not reimbursing me for the shared household items, which were all purchased using all my savings , the respondent has left me without any financial security and in a vulnerable position
- (10) I can barely afford to put a heavy duty barrel bolt to the front door or a deadlock night latch on my office and bedroom doors, and I cannot afford to replace the front door and add security to the windows; he still has keys to the house, and his behaviour has left me in fear of leaving the property as I cannot afford the means to stop him entering in my absence.

3.6 Witnesses and people I have told about the incident:

- (1) I have told all my friends, family, and neighbours about the incident.
- (2) My mother witnessed the incident.
- (3) I called 999, and discussed with officer Phoebe Kane and her colleague who both attended the premises and arrested the respondent for damaging property.
- (4) The police are wanting to prosecute the respondent under the charges of Controlling and Coercive Behaviour and assessed that my safety would be at risk if the respondent returned to the property.
- (5) The respondent has been released on bail under the conditions not to return to the property or contact me. The conditions are currently set until the 27th November.
- (6) I therefore seek urgent protection by way of a non-molestation order and occupation order.
- (7) Case number 01/790699/24
Detective in charge: TDC Jonty Proudfoot (jonty.proudfoot@met.police.uk)

I don't have a written report about the incident, but TDC Proudfoot told me adding his details to the injunction order request would be sufficient information for the Court.

I'm afraid you made anything around money a war and I have no intention of going through it again with you so I will not put any more money into anything with you it's been hell I'm still traumatised I'm not doing it again.

Did you stop the washing machine last night during the cycle?

Paul isn't here yet

Yes Alex but everything is mine here I made this home.. we've done the front garden you didn't say anything about that except complaining about the plant growing.. we're not done with it we did the bamboo last weekend and will do the climber this weekend. But you're extremely rude about everything mainly when you haven't helped at all. Either do things or don't complain about it.

I bought everything around here despite not having a job, your bread box, your sparkling water thing... You've never helped me financially when we were together I've put all my savings into making this house a home all on my own and I have no more money to put towards it now have a lovely weekend. I'll be back evening sunday.

I'm not arguing just telling you how things are now.

I honestly think we can enjoy getting the house back into shape, painting the rooms and getting it back into a nice state. Its summer time, you wanted to 'own' the garden and I want to get Paul out ASAP so we can paint over the electrics - so lets try to enjoy getting it back up and running please - and we will have to work together to get that to happen.

What I mean to say is please can you start being proactive and constructive around the house. I can't look after it without you.
There's a tree growing through the window....
The shower is leaking
We have no wall lights
The garden is over grown ..

Whatever is going on between us we need to look after the house otherwise it will get into disrepair. Please help me to look after it

Paragraph 28

405

Paragraph 28

Continuation of Statement of:

I was selfish, saying things like "why did you choose that." I can't remember whether I said anything back to him. Alex grabbed the toilet paper off the floor, saying "this is the toilet paper from upstairs," and I grabbed the toilet paper back saying "that's mine." He started shouting at me to pay for take-out that we had gotten the night before, and continued shouting. During this argument he told me "go fuck yourself, get your toys out and fuck yourself," and called me a "horrible, horrible woman." I exhibit this recording as ISS/03.

On the 1st of September 2024, at around 10 or 10:30pm, I started recording as soon as Alex came through the front door. I was sitting on the couch in the living room. He stared shouting at me because I had moved the duvet that I owned off our bed into my room. He came into the living room and started shouting at me, wondering where the duvet was. Whilst he was shouting at me he called me a "fucking bitch" and then said that he had "told HMRC that I have committed benefit fraud for this year and last year." I have not committed benefit fraud, but I think Alex was referring to one time where I didn't inform Universal Credit that I was leaving the country to see my parents. I am happy to provide bank statements regarding this allegation. He continued to shout at me and told me to "fucking have some respect." He then accused me of damaging the cord attached to the window and causing "300 quids worth of damage," which I do not recall damaging. I exhibit this recording as ISS/06.

I called the police at around 11:30pm as I was terrified of Alex, and my Mum was in the house and I wanted to make sure that she would be safe, considering what was happening. When the police arrived, I spoke to the police, and I told them that I had heard noises upstairs and that Alex was hitting and banging things. The officer told me to check upstairs and see whether anything was broken, so I went upstairs to the top floor and saw that a lamp, which belongs to me, was broken on the floor. I'm not sure whether Alex damaged the lamp whilst he was hitting and banging things upstairs, but Alex had not told me that he had broken this lamp previously.

Throughout our relationship, Alex has been verbally abusive, and at times physical by throwing objects at me mainly my phone and my laptop, controlling and constantly threatening me mainly with my cats or my mother. Towards the end of our relationship, after we moved into the house together, Alex was shouting at me and arguing with me almost daily. He has called me words like "cunt," "bitch," and "cow." When we were in Greece, in Summer 2023, he told me to "do the world a favour and go kill yourself." He said this again at around Christmas, 2023. He would only ever say these things to me and would never say them in front of other people. These words made me feel shocked and played on my mental health, especially as when I was younger, I did try and commit suicide.

Alex also told me on one occasion that he was putting a lock on the door of the room that I was staying in, without my permission, and told me that I would not be getting access to it. He did not put the lock on this door.

What was your role in the events you're asking about?

Victim

What information do you want?

I am writing to formally request access to personal data held about me, under the UK General Data Protection Regulation (UK GDPR) and the Data Protection Act 2018. I would be grateful if you could assist with the following, and kindly treat this matter as urgent due to the ongoing impact on my safety and wellbeing:

1. Call Recording and Transcript

I would like to request both the audio file and a transcript of the call I made to the police on Sunday, 1 September 2024, at approximately 23:30.

This is in relation to a domestic abuse incident, and the call has become significant due to serious false claims made by my ex-partner regarding its content and purpose.

Call Reference: CAD7936/01Sep24

2. Initial Report of Abuse

I would also like a copy of the initial report made when I first reported the abuse to the police.

An appointment was originally scheduled for 19 August 2024 at 08:00, when a male officer attended the property.

Reference Number: CAD4438/18Aug24

However, this was later changed, and a female officer attended on what I believe was 20 August 2024 at around 15:30. I am not certain if this second visit falls under the same reference, as I have been unable to locate an alternative CAD number.

3. Current Case Report

Finally, I would like to request a copy of the current report related to my case. As it has now been nearly seven months, I have yet to receive any official documentation relating to the file.

Initial Case Number: 01/790699/24

Current Case Number (as I understand it): 01/YE/13273/24

This request is time-sensitive, as I am currently dealing with legal and personal matters where these records may be critical. I would greatly appreciate it if this could be handled as a matter of priority.

Please let me know if you require any additional information or identification documents to process this request. I would also appreciate confirmation of receipt and an indication of the expected timeline for response.

Do you have a crime reference or incident number for the events you're asking about?

Yes

Crime reference or incident number

When did the events you're asking about happen?

18/08/2024 - 12/04/2025

Any other details about yourself or the event(s) that might help us find the information you're looking for
I completely understand the police's current workload and that there may be a waiting period for processing requests. However, if at all possible, I would be very grateful if the request regarding the phone call made on the night of 1 September 2024 (CAD7936/01Sep24) could be treated as the most urgent, due to its direct relevance to my safety and ongoing legal concerns. Thank you for your time and consideration.
